

to remain in the off position so they are powered down when the switched DC power supplies power down